

FAIR READY FOR CROWDS: FINE SHOW

HAVE EXCELLENT RACES

Gates Open Tuesday Morning—Special Features That Will Attract Attention of Thousands of Visitors.

A fair that will rival any exposition ever held in this section of the north-west, will throw open its gates tomorrow morning and remain open for the next four days. Janesville's big fair and home coming celebration, which is to be conducted at the Janesville Driving park in the day time and on the downtown streets in the evening will eclipse all other celebrations or fairs ever given in this city.

The first day of the fair tomorrow will be given over to the entertainment of the children. Special features will be staged and the day's program will include things of special interest for children and everyone. The "Boys' Band," composed of the "four boys" ranging in age from nine to fifteen years, will furnish music throughout the day. The band is the best organization of its kind in this part of the country and Janesville will be their first appearance. They have been engaged to play at the state fair at Milwaukee and a number of the country fairs. For the past several years they have been playing in Chicago at a national lodge convention. J. H. McNeill, late director of the St. Thomas' church choir in Beloit, is their leader.

There are many other attractions tomorrow besides the band. The student stock judging contest takes place in the morning at ten-thirty o'clock. In the afternoon horse races will be run on the half mile course. The exhibits and shows on the midway will be in complete readiness for the grand opening tomorrow morning.

Big Live Stock Show.

The display of live stock this year will greatly exceed that of other years. This morning extra tents and stalls were erected for the stock department. About four hundred head of the best stock ever shown in this section will be in their places this morning and late this afternoon will bring the total number of entries up to four hundred. This is as large as the exhibit of the live stock at the Milwaukee fair. Two herds from the Duluth stock farm of Duluth, Minnesota, have arrived. The exhibitor in charge wired at once for Mr. Grover, head of the farm, to come. He stated that it could be plainly seen that the competition would be keen and that he would be glad to see the live display of cattle.

The secretary's office has been moved to the grounds and a force of five clerks besides the fair directors are busy thing and tending to the fair business. Persons wishing to enter exhibits should do so at the fair grounds office. A corps of the best judges in the state will arrive tomorrow and Wednesday and commence their work.

Comfort Features.

Nothing will be lacking in the way of comforts for the fair patrons. A large amount of the open air has been reserved for the use of the babies will be open for use. Immediately behind the grand stand a large tent has been placed and will be used as a recreation spot for the children. Mrs. Weiss and Miss Buckmaster will be in charge of this tent. Special police have been employed to look after the crowds and to prevent accidents. The grounds have been placed at intervals around the different buildings and the fire protection will be of the best. Drinking fountains, running cold water will be in commission and open for the use of the public.

Stores to Close.

At a meeting of the Janesville Retailers' association a resolution was passed agreeing to close all stores on Thursday afternoon. Thursday is Janesville Day and this will give the employees of the stores an opportunity to attend the fair. The two Janesville bands will furnish music during the day and the racing and other contests. This resolution will affect the grocers, drygoods and all stores that are members of the retailers' association.

Since early Saturday morning, all highways have seemed to lead toward Janesville, and not only the highways but the different railroads have been unloading cattle, hogs and sheep, as well as harness horses, all arriving for the coming Janesville fair. Saturday and Sunday herds of cattle and sheep are being driven over the different roads, the most of which were brought through the night on account of the excitement.

As to the fair grounds on Monday morning found but few vacant stalls in the different barns, and as the harness horses filled the last stalls on the grounds, tents were being erected on the main entrance. It is said that on Tuesday morning the directors of the fair will open the gates to the finest fair Janesville has ever seen.

At no time during the history of the fair have the different herds of cattle, hogs and sheep, as they have to do, and as for the harness horses, the city list of different classes will tell its own story.

High Breed Stock.

Among the harness horses, one of the interesting places to visit are the stalls of the high breed horses shipped from Winnipeg and Brandon, Canada. This stable consists of eight head of the highest class harness horses in the country, both trotters and pacers, and these gentlemen have been racing since early in May. Among the owners and drivers of these horses are Frank Pouille, landlord of the Brunswick Hotel, Winnipeg; Joseph Barnes, A. F. Briggs, all of Winnipeg, and W. A. Spral and Con. Fale of Brandon.

All these gentlemen are enthusiastic over the grounds and the equipment and they will be the fair officials on their arrival.

Authoritative Information Says That Demand Is "Overwhelmingly in Favor of Strike."

New York, Aug. 7.—The task of counting the votes of approximately 400,000 railroad employees on the question of authorizing a general strike in the event that their demands for an eight hour day and time and a half pay for overtime, are finally denied, was completed just before noon today. It was announced that the vote was overwhelmingly in favor of the strike.

Although no official statement could be obtained as to the result, it was learned from an authoritative source, that the vote was overwhelmingly in favor of the strike.

Switchmen to Arbitrate.

George Hanger of the United States board of mediation and conciliation, announced here today that as a result of a conference between representatives of the Switchmen's Union and the railroads, both sides had agreed to settle their differences by arbitration.

Men and the railroads are in no way connected with those pending between the place and railroad brotherhood of firemen, engineers, conductors and trainmen.

TWELVE COWS KILLED NORTH OF THE CITY

Twelve Valuable Head of Stock Killed by Train at Anderson's Crossing Saturday Evening.

Twelve valuable head of cattle belonging to Herbert Smith of the town of Janesville, were killed Saturday evening by a Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul train near Anderson's Crossing, a few miles north of the city. The herd of twenty-four cattle had broken through the fence and were on the railroad's right-of-way when the accident occurred. Two of the cows were killed first by a train going out of Janesville. Word was immediately sent to this city telling of the accident, but before the section men arrived the place where the train from the north passed by and killed ten and injured two more.

They were of the Holstein breed and were valued at eleven hundred dollars. The two injured cows will recover. The cow catcher of the engine was demolished and had the train been traveling at a fast rate of speed, a wreck might have occurred.

LATEST GAIN OF BRITISH IS DISPUTED

GERMANS LAUNCH HEAVY COUNTER-ATTACKS NORTH OF POZIERES AND CLAIM SUCCESSES.

HALT TURKS AT SUEZ

Turkish Defeat Reported in London as Decisive With Loss of 3,000 Prisoners to English Defenders.

Berlin, Aug. 7.—German troops have recaptured portions of the trench which had been taken by the British near Pozieres, on the Somme front, it was officially announced today by German army headquarters.

Report German Failure.

London, Aug. 7.—Several small counter attacks by the Germans on the Pozieres last night were repulsed, the war office announced today. The Germans are bombarding British positions between the Ancre and the Somme.

Repulse Teuton Attacks.

Paris, Aug. 7.—The repulse of German attacks at Thiaumont and in the Vaux and Cheiret, in the Verdun sector, is announced in official statement issued by the French war office this afternoon. The statement records a vigorous artillery duel north of the Somme and in the region of Chaurel. The French screen of fire checked the German attack at Thiaumont. In the Vaux and Cheiret the Germans preceded their attacks by a heavy bombardment.

Turk Attack Fails.

London, Aug. 7.—The most recent attempt of the Turks to reach the Suez canal has been a greater failure than the earlier reports indicated. Lieutenant General Sir Archibald James Murray, commander of British troops in Egypt, reports today besides taking more than 3,000 prisoners in battle with the Turks at Romani, his forces inflicted very heavy losses and had continued the pursuit of the retreating Turks for eighteen miles, clearing the Turks from the Ratta basin.

Military writers are unable to fathom the reason why the Turks ventured upon their attack. The only conclusion reached is that the Turkish military authorities were misled as to the British preparations for the defense of the canal, and hoped to make an impression on the rebellious Arabs who are extending their hold on important places in Arabia.

Difficulties of Attack.

The Turkish advance, as far as Romani was made in the face of greatest difficulties, their six-inch guns being dragged across the desert by oxen after relays of planks had been placed to prevent the wheels from sinking in the sand.

PHILADELPHIA FACES STREET CAR STRIKE

Motormen and Conductors Employed on One Line Are Under Orders to Quit.—New York Strike to End.

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 7.—Motormen and conductors on the line of the Philadelphia Rapid Transit company were under orders today to quit their jobs in support of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees to strike today in an effort to secure recognition of that union, an increase in wages and better working conditions.

New York Strike Near End.

New York, Aug. 7.—A peaceful end of the strike on the New York Railway company's subway car line, which began Friday night, was in prospect today. Meetings of the organization of the union men and the board of directors of the railway company were called for eleven o'clock today to consider proposals of settlement which already had been approved by President Schantz of the company and by representatives of the Amalgamated Association of Street and Electric Railway Employees of America.

Mediation Efforts Fail.

Efforts of Mayor Mitchell and Public Service Commissioner Strauss to settle the street railway strike in New York failed today. After protracted meetings, directors of the New York Railway company declined at this time to ratify the tentative agreement proposed by the two public officials as a basis for a settlement.

COAST GUARD SEES SUBMARINE CRAFT OFF MAINE COAST

Mysterious Submersible May be Either the Deutschland or the Bremen, Naval Officials Think.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Portland, Me., Aug. 7.—A submarine was sighted five miles off the coast by a lookout at the coast guard station on Cross Island, at 11:25 this forenoon. It was moving west, out the weather was thick and its nationality could not be made out. The submarine was sighted as she was coming to the surface. Fifteen minutes later she submerged.

Sighted at Lighthouse.

Machias, Aug. 7.—The lookout who sighted the submarine later said that he picked up the vessel in clear weather five miles to the south-east. As the vessel came to the surface, the lookout said he heard several blasts from a signal horn at the lighthouse on Seal Island, a British possession.

Believed that the keeper of the lighthouse was signaling to the keeper at Grand Mahan light, also British owned, that a submarine had been sighted. Immediately after the whistle sounded the submarine submerged. A few minutes later a haze set in and it was impossible to see more than four miles off Cross Island.

Sees Second Submarine.

Love, Aug. 7.—A lookout on Cross Island, later reported he had sighted a second submarine, considerably smaller than the first one.

A canvas of naval station and builders appeared to establish that no American submarines were off this coast. Men who are close to naval affairs expressed the conviction that no submarine of the German navy was now in Canadian waters, or near the New England coast.

Deutschland or Bremen?

Washington, Aug. 7.—Naval officers said today that the submarine which was known to be anywhere in the vicinity of Cross Island. They thought the boat might be the German submarine, Deutschland or the Bremen, sister ship, the Bremen, bound for the United States.

Refused Comment.

Baltimore, Aug. 7.—G. H. Hink, senior member of the Eastern Forwarding company, American agent of the Deutschland, read the Associated Press dispatch reporting the sighting of a submarine off the Maine coast today with interest, but refused to comment on the possibility of the craft being the Bremen or any other German underwater boat.

STOP STRIFE IN INDUSTRY SAYS HUGHES

AMERICAN WORKING MAN "A FELLOW WORKER" OF CAPITALISTS HE TELLS DETROIT MANUFACTURERS.

TALKS TO SUFFRAGISTS

Reiterates Declaration Favoring "Votes for Women" in Short Interview With Suffrage Advocates.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 7.—Charles E. Hughes, speaking today to forty manufacturers of Detroit and vicinity employing nearly 100,000 men, congratulated them upon what they had done for welfare of their employees, and told them that the democracy of the United States would not stand for a continuation of "this alleged strife between capital and labor," and declared that the American workman should not be regarded as an economic, but as "a fellow worker, a human being."

Mr. Hughes' address was imprudent and followed a brief speech by J. M. Eaton, spokesman for the manufacturers, who outlined the welfare measures for employees taken by the land of freedom, and suggested that the American workman should not be regarded as an economic, but as "a fellow worker, a human being."

LAD MUST WORK OUT $100 FINE AND PAY HIS BIG HOTEL BILL

Detroit Boy Who Lived in Style at Grand Hotel and Attempted to Pass Worthless Check Gets Penalty.

Because he had a flyer at the high life with its bright lights, classy clothes, Epicurean fodder, wine, women and song, and then tried to cash a worthless check to pay a big hotel bill, the seventeen year old Detroit youth, who lived like a prince at the Grand Hotel, must work out a hundred dollars fine and pay his hotel and other bills. Such was Judge Maxfield's edict in municipal court this morning when Griswold, or Judson, appeared on face charged with attempting to secure money under false pretenses.

Griswold has the alternative of six months in jail or the fine, but air, sunbath and pay the money at a cell at the jail, a sharp contrast to his quarters at the Grand. Griswold will be farmed out for the period to some labor-needing agriculturalist who will be required to furnish him with food and a collapsible silo roof, since he says he has a patent for just such a contrivance.

Attorney Gardner Kalvelage appeared for his defense and withdrew a plea of not guilty and stated that Griswold was ready to do his bit. Mr. Kalvelage's opinion was that the boy needed a punishment, but control rather than punishment. He offered information that the Rev. Francis H. Brigham, pastor of the Cargill Memorial Methodist church, had interested himself in the case and would be ready to look after Griswold if the court saw fit to place the boy in care of the minister.

WISCONSIN BRIGADE IS OFF ON A HIKE

Break Camp at San Antonio Early Today to Start on Ten Mile March to Riffe Range.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

San Antonio, Tex., Aug. 7.—In absolute silence, like an army at war in a hostile country, the Wisconsin brigade broke camp at four o'clock this morning for a ten mile march toward Riffe Range for a week of rifle practice. Not even so much as a bugle call was heard to schedule calls or mess, etc., the time of loading and departure previously being announced.

The cooks were called at three o'clock, and at four, mess forty-three trucks loaded at five and left at 5:45, fifteen minutes before the brigade started on the Fredericksburg road.

Pursuant to orders from headquarters the packs, although carried on six marches of from nine to eleven miles in the past ten days, were carried in motor trucks. Four hundred recruits among the thousand will receive rifle instructions. The brigade will return in ten days.

WAR SURGEONS SAVE MORE MEN THAN IN 1870; INCREASE ONE ARMED ONE LEGGED TYPE.

Paris, Aug. 7.—One armed and one-legged men are now so common as to raise a question as to why they are so numerous.

Dr. Auguste Broca, while admitting that the conditions of warfare and the scale of the operations must necessarily multiply the number of amputated limbs, claims that a considerable part of the increase in the proportion of the survivors who lack a member is due to the progress of surgery since the war of 1870; in that conflict nearly all the amputated men died of purulent infection. In this war, thanks to progress in medical science, they are nearly all saved, he says.

In consequence, the demands upon manufacturers of artificial limbs are out of all proportion to anticipations. Dr. Broca considers that the construction of artificial substitutes for members have also made great progress. Before the war a really efficient artificial member was an object of luxury; under the stress of circumstances manufacturers have to a great extent obliterated the distinction between the rich man's and the poor man's apparatus. Not that there has been any modification in prices; none of the efficient models are cheap. American systems are much in favor but are not universally applicable because they do not adapt themselves to the transition period in which an amputated member must adapt itself somewhat to the apparatus.

Honey bees were introduced to New Zealand in 1880. Modern methods of beekeeping were introduced in 1878, principally from the United States. The industry is now supported by New Zealand laws and regulations. In 1906 the government established an experimental apiary, where between forty and fifty students are trained annually.

Daytime Sleep.

The woman who can drop asleep quickly, for a few minutes' nap in the daytime, is really blessed. If such a little slumber that "knits up the raveled sleeve of care," can be managed its refreshment is wonderful. To darken the room is the first aid to slumber. If this is out of the question for any reason, or if the nap is taken out of doors, a dark scarf tied lightly over the eyes has the needed effect.

PLEA FOR AMERICA SOUNDED BY JEFFRIS

SENATORIAL CANDIDATE IN ADDRESS TO MILWAUKEE RETAIL GROCERS AT ANNUAL PICNIC.

URGES UNITED NATION

"America First, America Honored," is Theme Elaborated on in Speech Filled With Patriotic Appeal.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Milwaukee, Aug. 7.—M. G. Jeffris, republican candidate for the United States senate, in a brief speech before a patriotic gathering of the retail grocers' association, Sunday, spoke of "America first, America honored." Mr. Jeffris' only reference to La Follette, his political rival, was with respect to the senior senator's eighth hour argument against the naval preparedness bill. It was essentially a nonpolitical, nonpartisan speech which might have been delivered from any pulpit in Milwaukee.

Mayor Daniel W. Hoan, who spoke of the value of labor organization, furnished the senatorial candidate his theme. "I, too, come to speak of organization," declared Mr. Jeffris. "I urge you to organize with me and among you a united States which will become the biggest, the best, the most genuine organization on earth. Let us make of our country America first, America honored. To the smaller nations of the world may our flag represent right and justice; to the biggest and most powerful nations may it represent might and right."

Although it was neither hot in the grove where Mr. Jeffris spoke and despite the fact that hundreds of men, women and children were crowded close to the speaker's platform, this speech was greeted with a burst of enthusiasm hardly to be expected under the conditions. The speaker was greeted with shouts of "Good!" and "You're right!" Women in the audience applauded. "I know that in a political campaign," continued Mr. Jeffris, "men speak of a divided allegiance and of the hyphenated citizen, but I know that men and women should feel sympathy and love for the motherland. Indeed we would be a strange people if we were lacking in this very human trait. I care not whether you come from England, Germany, France, Belgium or any other country. I know that when it is a question of America, that our people are for America first, last and all the time, and that is why in these critical times when Europe has gone war mad that I appeal to you to take a personal and active interest in bringing about a union which is greater than all the unions of labor and all the unions known to mankind. Let us make of America an organization of outstanding men."

Mr. Jeffris then referred to Senator La Follette's long argument in the United States senate against the naval preparedness bill. "For eight hours," said he, "Senator La Follette fought preparedness, for eight hours he fought President Wilson, for eight hours he fought Mr. Hughes, and when the roll was called it showed eight votes on the side of La Follette and against America. The men who helped La Follette on that occasion are going to be brought into this state to fight against my election, because I stand for preparedness. And the men who stood with La Follette and against America when the naval bill was up for consideration all but one of them have already been elected in their own states. Among them is Senator Clapp of Minnesota, who ran fourth in the primary in his state. I want you to hear these men, if they come, because their presence here and what they have to say will do much to more clearly define the issue. What they have to say will make it easier for you to think straight on those questions which are to the very well-being of this country."

Was Formerly Grocer. Years ago, when as a young man he was starting out in life, Mr. Jeffris was the proprietor of a grocery store in Janesville. This fact was known to many in the audience and his reference to it pleased the crowd. The speaker was then introduced by John Ferris, chief of staff of the Malcolm G. Jeffris club of Milwaukee country. Mr. Ferris explained that the club is a voluntary organization made up of men who are working toward the nomination of election of Mr. Jeffris. The picnic was formally opened by Mayor Hoan. In addition to making general plea for the organization of labor he invited members of the grocers' association to take an active interest in the movement to beautify Milwaukee. A more beautiful Milwaukee, he would like to see than this city a better, a bigger and a more wholesome Milwaukee. Through the efforts of the grocers' association and similar organizations, he said, Milwaukee is rapidly becoming one of the biggest convention cities in the northwest.

W. N. More headed the Whitewater aggregation, which was composed of the Bower City Band, Robert Daley and a number of car loads of Boosters. The party left the Whitewater at 7:30 p.m. and arrived at Fulton at 9:30 p.m. A record crowd out to greet the Bower City Party, as there were fully fifteen hundred persons assembled to meet the Whitewater people. The band opened the program and Mr. More, speaker for the evening, delivered a speech of welcome and invited the Whitewater people to attend the fair and home coming celebration, which was scheduled to clash with the Fort Atkinson nine on Wednesday morning. This was featured as one of the attractions of the fair.

Both of these teams have hundreds of followers who will be in Janesville on Wednesday. Robert S. Daley delighted the Whitewater people with a speech of welcome and invited the Whitewater people to attend the fair and home coming celebration, which was scheduled to clash with the Fort Atkinson nine on Wednesday morning. This was featured as one of the attractions of the fair.

City Attorney Johnson of Whitewater responded to Mr. More's address. Booster party number two visited Fulton and Edgerton, where the Janesville Military Band furnished the music and Oscar Hammarlund was the Booster vocalist. His selections with the band accompanied him forth a large audience of Whitewater people. The party delivered the Booster address. The first stop was made at Fulton, where a gathering of several hundred people were attending a church anniversary celebration. They welcomed the party heartily and gave an assurance that they would be in Janesville this week. From Fulton the party went to Edgerton. A similar program was rendered and brought forth the same results. All the Booster runs which have been conducted during the last ten days have proved to be successful.

Tonight the last of the Booster runs will be staged. Two parties will leave the Myers House corner at seven-thirty o'clock. One will make its way to Beloit and the other will take in Orfordville, Hanover and Footville. The fair board would be pleased if a large number of auto owners would get in line and accompany the aggregation on one of the two trips.

REFORMATORY TERM FOR MERT SIMMONS

Young Man Who Burglarized Saloon Gets Eighteen Months But May Have Sentence Reduced.

Merton Simmons, 26, was sentenced to a term of eighteen months in the state reformatory by Judge Maxfield this morning, after pleading guilty to charges of entering and burglarizing the T. S. Welsh saloon, on North Main street, a week ago Sunday after having been arrested by police officers. The court announced that should Simmons make application to the state board of control for a pardon it would be considered.

The police said that Simmons had a poor record about town and that he had been arrested several times. His mother, who was in court, said that he was a good boy at home, that he never spoke a cross word to her in his life and that his only bad habit was an addiction to drink.

Simmons was taken down stairs preparatory to being sent to the county jail to be taken to Green Bay, when the attorney for the state, Judge Maxfield, it was decided to look up his record and if possible cut down the sentence.

Several times previously the young man has been before the court on drunkenness charges.

FOODS THEY BUILD OR DESTROY

Amazing but rarely suspected truths about the things you eat.

By ALFRED W. McCANN (Copyright, 1916, by Alfred W. McCann.)

CHAPTER 94.

The housewife is charged by the manufacturer with the responsibility for the use of sulphurous acid in her food. She is told that many unnatural ornamental characteristics demanded by her—she is told, it is argued, she has no one to blame but herself.

While the dried fruit industry has been engaged in the production of hundreds of tons of beautiful apricots, peaches, apples, rubies, and Sultana raisins, the Fruit Growers' association gathered up from well-cultivated orchards to send to their sulphur plants, one department of the federal government, the bureau of agriculture, has been engaged in fighting the abuse while another department, the office of the solicitor of the department of agriculture, was busy protecting the industry.

Long before Dr. Olsen began to look into the conduct of sulphurous acid introduced into the human body with bleached and colored food, the bureau of chemistry, through the inspiration of Dr. Wiley, had spent thousands of dollars in this direction. Circular No. 37, issued by the department of agriculture Nov. 22, 1907, declared:

"The administration of sulphurous acid in the food produces serious disturbances of the metabolic functions, adds acids and irritates the kidneys which cannot result in anything but injury. It impoverishes the blood in respect to the number of red corpuscles and the administration of a substance which gives it these important component particles of the blood is in every sense prejudicial to health."

Four months prior to the publication of Circular No. 37, Dr. Frederick L. Dunlap and Solicitor George E. McCabe declared in Food Inspection Decision No. 76, that "pending investigation of the use of sulphurous acid upon the health of the people, the department of agriculture would institute no action against the manufacturers of food and drinks which contain sulphurous acid, a bleaching agent and preservative."

This official utterance was published July 13, 1907. Yet sulphurous acid is still in use. Hundreds of thousands of dollars were taken from the appropriation established by congress with which to enable the bureau of chemistry to prosecute food adulterations. This money by a peculiar system of accounting was turned over to the referee board, which, in all these strongly silent years, kept its findings to itself.

In the meantime the housewife who does not know that sulphurous acid is present in many foods now purchased by her for home use has a means of knowing the truth. She need only take advantage of such means as necessitates the exercise of considerable energy and trouble. The wholesale container or shipping case, usually in the form of a wooden box, in which the chemically treated fruit is shipped from the sulphur plants to the wholesale grocer and delivered by the wholesale grocer to the retail grocer, is marked with the word "sulphured," or with the phrase "contains SO₂," or bleached with sulphur, or "treated with sulphur dioxide."

Doubtless the housewife, who does not know that sulphurous acid is employed in food products for the threefold purpose of preserving them, of making them look better than they are and of adding to them large quantities of water which can be sold at food prices, will find it difficult to suddenly change her attitude toward the outward characteristics of many foods with which she is familiar in order to arrive at some actual knowledge of the facts.

However, it can be stated as a fundamental proposition that when the housewife sacrifices food value for food ornamentation she is indulging in needless extravagance. When she shells her wheat and bleaches it with a powder which with nitrates her finished accomplishment is no longer flour.

Sooner or later she must realize that food that looks good for the gods is ill adapted for the enrichment of mere physical man, who possesses neither the wings of angels nor the intelligence of the Deity.

She takes pride in emphasizing the cleanness and transparency of the drinking water provided for her family—the food water that has not been "contaminated" by Mother Earth; she does not stop to consider the fact that the more the water is used by Mother Earth, the more mineral salts it dissolves and the higher its refractive index.

The more transparent the drinking water, the less power it holds for replenishing the tissue salts lost through the urine and feces.

With lofty disdain she refuses to eat natural brown rice, insisting that its nutritious brown coat be polished off so that it will look pretty and white.

She rejects the nutritious rice polishings, so rich in mineral content, as food fit only for dogs. The worthless rice starch granules are insisted upon for her children.

Yet, when the Philippine island has been devastated by her own government appreciated the dangers of the snow-white food so pleasing to the eye and look radical action against the abuse.

Ugly brown maple syrup loses its refinement of taste when it is refined in color. When it is made as pure as cane sugar or beet sugar it is just as sweet as cane sugar or beet sugar but it has lost its characteristic flavor of the maple just as the refined sugar of the modern dining room has lost the soul of the cane.

She fails to recognize the fact that purely ornamental food belongs under the glass case in the parlor, not upon the well-filled board over which she admires the wondrously beautiful peacock, but eats the flesh of the peacock.

She is not shocked in the presence of dusky devil cake. The farmer who would not dream of coloring his wheat straw with coal tar green so that his cows might think they were eating grass asks that his manufactured jam be colored a passionate red with gas house refuse.

The housewife does not know, but she ought to know, that her farmer knows that his butter, saturated with anatto or tumeric in a desperate effort to keep up appearances has not the golden yellow color standing enjoyed by his own pale, creamy product.

The farmer knows that the brilliant yellow does not improve the flavor of his butter, but on the contrary allows every opportunity for fraud.

He knows that the meat of the ox when freshly slaughtered is a brownish red. Yet he encourages the butcher to substitute a scarlet hue with sulphites as if the poor beast had died of coal gas poisoning.

From Brooklyn tons of anhydrous sodium sulphite are shipped throughout the country to the hamburger artists of America.

The breast muscles of birds that use their wings are dark. While breast meat of the chicken is in a lingering state of degeneration caused by the time-honored atrophy of disuse. Laz people who sit in rocking chairs would not make good stew for cannibals, although their flesh would become paler and paler, whiter and whiter the longer they sit before going to the cauldron.

The housewife knows that if a coal dealer painted stones black and sold them to her husband as coal her husband would proclaim the fraud far and wide and immediately seek the commissioner of weights and measures or some other official bureau for aid.

Coal is judged by its heat units, but food is judged by its personal appearance.

The housewife who would get to the bottom of the sulphur bleached fruits of the market place must be taught the truth concerning odor and taste as well as the lies concerning "ornament."

As long as she demands that the wealth of the fields be poisoned with crafty dyes great chemists will prostitute their science with deceptive and cunning tricks.

As long as she demands that pickles be hardened with alum, the same alum will harden the lining of her stomach.

As long as she tastes spices with her eyes ketchup will be flaming red. As long as she refuses to be shocked at the appearance of the homey brunette prune and the little darky raisin, she cannot defend her clamor for the bleached blondes of the fruit world as they now come to her in a silly parade painted with poison.

The eye is pleased with stained glass, with gaudy beads, with flashing trinkets, but the old-fashioned sundried apple, a rusty brown in appearance, and the old-fashioned sundried peach and apricot, lacking in skin beauty, possess food value of such tremendous importance to her growing children that she would rise up and cry to the fakers who fool her with whitewash, "Shams! I will have no more of it!"

ENGLISH AIRMAN RUNS DOWN FLEETING SPARROW IN RACE OF THRILLS HIGH IN AIR

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, Aug. 7.—A thrilling race between an officer of the Flying corps in an aeroplane and a swallow caused him to doubt whether their reputed flight of 200 miles an hour was correct. Day when I was in the air last week one day when I observed a swallow flying high in front of me," he said. "I resolved to test its speed. I went out full after it, and the swallow also put on full speed. The bird dived, so did I. It went up, and I followed. We were at it hammer and tongs for a quarter of an hour, diving, rising and racing and I gained on it foot by foot. Finally one of the wires on my machine struck the bird and it went down. I was sorry and felt selfish thus to take the bird's life for sport."

STATE BANKERS GATHER FOR ANNUAL CONVENTION

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] North McGregor, Ia., Aug. 7.—Anglers of this village can no longer dig their wriggly bait from the yard of the Methodist church—long the favorite digging ground for the small boy with the bait can.

The trustees of the church have served notice on all the would-be diggers: "In order to keep from flooding the basement, it costs the Methodist church considerable to maintain a drainage ditch around the building. Parties in the habit of digging their fishing worms in this ditch, cause the water to run into the basement and this must be stopped."

As a means of disposing of your real estate, the little want ads are sure winners.

MORGAN CUP FINALS GIVES 36 HOLE TIE TO HOLMES-WILCOX

Only Players Left in Race for Trophy Round Course Twice and Tie Is Result.

Some competition! Is the expression today after witnessing the finals in the Morgan cup play at the links yesterday. D. W. Holmes and E. Wilcox went the route twice, apiece and at the end of the thirty-six holes both golfers were tied.

For the first eighteen holes the two were neck and neck. At the twenty-fifth, when time was taken for lunch, Wilcox was three up. At 2:30 they started again and Holmes began to show exceptional form. His drives were a slight edge on those of Wilcox and in the following twelve holes he had won back the deficit at the opening of the second day.

Both men were willing to quit after the thirty-sixth hole. They will play the tie off some time this week.

GREAT FIRE LOSS ON DELAVAN FARM

Building on Lake Lawn Farm Owned by D. E. La Vay Consumed. Estimated $25,000 Damage.

Delavan, Aug. 7.—At 3:25 o'clock this afternoon damage totalling at least $25,000 had been done by fire on the Lake Lawn farm, three miles east of this city and owned by D. E. La Vay of here.

The blaze at that time had consumed three large and modern farm buildings, machinery and tools and about a ton of hay. The fine farm house was still standing but was seriously menaced by the flames. The origin is thought to have been spontaneous combustion in a hay mow.

This is not the first time that action has been brought against Williams, the previous complaints being dismissed owing to the fact that the town board of Rock had granted a new saloon license to Williams July first in the face of the fact that charges were pending in the municipal court that would have invalidated his former license had they been brought to trial and the defendant found guilty.

CONFERENCES ACCEPT BIGGER ARMY BILL

Defense Legislation Takes Rapid Stride With Announcement of Successful Deliberations.

It is regarded as probable that the senate program for construction of four battleships and four battlecruisers in 1917 will be accepted, but the three year continuing program will be eliminated.

DUNWIDDIE PLANS DECISIVE ACTION

Adjournment Taken in South Janesville Case at Request of District Attorney for Further Investigation.

That District Attorney Stanley Dunwiddie plans to take some radical action in the action of the state against Frank Williams, proprietor of a South Janesville hotel on serious charges, was evidenced this morning when he asked for a continuance of the case for a week pending further investigation against the proprietor.

This is not the first time that action has been brought against Williams, the previous complaints being dismissed owing to the fact that the town board of Rock had granted a new saloon license to Williams July first in the face of the fact that charges were pending in the municipal court that would have invalidated his former license had they been brought to trial and the defendant found guilty.

Edward H. Ryan, who is Williams' attorney, took occasion to make a spirited tirade against the Gazette for publishing the charges against Williams, but was stopped by the court in the midst of personal charges of libel against an individual member of the Gazette staff.

At the conclusion of his direct examination of Williams, District Attorney Dunwiddie asked the case be adjourned one week until further investigation could be made, which was granted. The county board recently placed a large sum of money at the disposal of the district attorney for the purpose of investigating, which gives him increased powers and means of securing his evidence.

The South Janesville cases have for many years been before the public, but by clever manipulation, transfer of licenses and sale of property, the various owners have really escaped any punishment in the various actions brought. There is a strong intimation that should the present action, which involves the reputation of two Edgerton girls, now under the commitment law, at the hotel accompanied by two young men, that an appeal will be made for grand jury investigation. Town of Rock residents also resent the alleged manner in which the place in question is conducted and they promise some action if the court suit does not bring results.

When He Worked.

A celebrated author thus sketched out his daily program to an interviewer: Rise at 11, breakfast at 12; attention to mail; a few afternoon calls; a ride in the park; dinner; the theater; and then to bed. "But when do you do your literary work?" he was asked. "Why, the next day, of course," was the reply.

Clearing Wine of Sediment.

The newest way of removing sediment from bottles of wine before being sent to the market is effective and more economical than the older method. It consists of allowing the particles to settle in the neck of the bottle while in an inverted position and then freezing that part of the contents, whereupon it is easily blown off.

Wrong Guess.

A teacher was giving to her class an exercise in spelling and defining words: "Thomas," she said to a curly-haired little boy, "spell 'ibex.'" "I-b-e-x." "Correct. Define it." "An ibex," answered Thomas, after a prolonged mental struggle, "is where you look in the back part of the book when you want to find anything that's printed in the front of the book." GAINED FAME AS PUGILIST

John Broughton, English Fighter, Only Man Credited With Having Won Two Prize Distinctions.

John Broughton, alone among English professional pugilists, can claim the double distinction of an Abbey funeral and having dedicated to him a poem by the poet laureate. It was in 1744 that Paul Whitehead published his "Gymnasium," or "Boxing Match," which he inscribed, "To the most pious and invincible Mr. John Broughton." As early as 1730 Broughton had achieved athletic distinction as the winner of Doggett's Coat and Badge.

The science of boxing owes much to Broughton. "He promulgated a 'code' for the guidance of the combatants and the satisfaction of the judges," writes Mr. Guy Sackville. "His new rules were agreed upon by pugilists and approved of by the gentlemen on August 18, 1748, and lasted in perfect integrity until 1888, a period of nearly 100 years. He introduced science and humanity into what was up till then a barbarous sport, but not only inventing defensive guards, but also preventing a man being hit when he was down. He also introduced gloves or muffers for conducting mock combats or sparring matches." Broughton's patron was the duke of Cumberland, who made him a yeoman of the guard.

Quaint Raincoat.

When rain falls in tropical countries there is no mistake about it. The rain comes as if it meant to sweep away all such trifles as trees and bushes. A man who goes out in this deluge must protect himself, but he finds that a raincoat of the lightest kind has its disadvantages, for if it keeps the rain out, it also keeps the heat in.

The raincoat devised by the Mexicans is called a "chino," and is so porous that the heat of the body readily escapes, while owing to its construction it keeps the wearer dry. The chino is made of numberless long, narrow strips of dried palm-leaf, one end of each strip being woven into a light fabric and the rest falling loose. The wearer of this garment, rustles as he walks, and the rain pattering upon it makes a pleasant sound. Arrived at the house, he takes off his palm-leaf hat, shakes it, and hangs it up to dry. Then he slips off his chino, shakes that also, and hangs it up. He himself is untouched by the rain, but the chino, as it hangs up, looks like a huge, damp, brown cushion. Surely this raincoat is the quaintest in the world.

Dog Is Truly Faithful.

That a dog is a most faithful animal was proved in Seaford recently, says the Seaford (Del.) correspondent of the Philadelphia Record.

The late Wilson W. Donoho for many years acted as yardmaster at the cannery of Greenbaum brothers in the pea-canning season, and every morning his little dog Sport accompanied him to his work when the whistle sounded and stayed with him throughout the day, stationing himself beside an electric light pole in the yard until the cannery closed for the night. Several days when Donoho was sick or absent Sport made the trip alone, but always found friends to share his dinners with him.

This year, when the whistle blew for the first time, Sport left home and went direct to the factory and continued to do so from day to day, refusing to leave his favorite resting place beside the pole.

Heaven.

Without organized effort we could never have heaven on earth. Heaven is perfection of organization that gets all routine work done in the pleasantest and quickest way, leaving the most of every person's time free to work out its own new thought into new expression for the joy of all. In essentials, unity of action; beyond that, freedom for self-expression; this is heaven—Nautilus.

NEWS NOTES FROM MOVIELAND

BY DAISY DEAN

Euna Goodrich, equally popular among patrons of the stage and screen, has joined the long procession of famous stars who have deserted the stage indefinitely for the silent drama. Miss Goodrich to date has appeared in but one photoplay, "Aristocrat's Wife," and that was released last year. Now it is announced that she will give all her time to moving pictures and is already at work for a company at Los Angeles.

The subject in which Miss Goodrich will make her debut as a star is entitled "The Tangle," an adaptation from the play "The Making of Magdalen" by Mary and Samuel Lewis, in which Mary Emerson originally starred with great success. Supporting her in this play are Forrest Stanley and Howard Davies. "The Tangle" will be released early next month.

THE DESERT LURES

GLADYS BROCKWELL, leading woman in a big western picture now being made, has had her first taste of the great west, the west which offers its mighty deserts, sage brush, coyotes, mountains and stars, and she is a convert.

"For," says Miss Brockwell, "there is no life so free as that of outdoors. Give me a pony, supplies and a compass and I'll warrant I could pass a month on the Mojave desert with never a regret. I have often heard of the prospectors who spent their lives in the deserts and in the mountains and the stories of their love for their surroundings always seemed far fetched and exaggerated to me. But now I know it was the truth I heard. There is a lure to the desert in its awful mystery, and a certain comfort in the stars. It is a wonderful life, out in the desert, and I'm mighty glad 'The Honor System' called us to the desert. I can hardly wait to return."

THIS PARAGRAPH IS FOR WOMEN

Blanche Sweet believes in preparedness for women and shows her military tendencies in the black broadcloth suit she is wearing. The tailored skirt hangs in straight lines from the waistline and is longer than skirts generally being worn this season. The jacket is straight and short. It boasts no collar and its only visible means of support are two bands of the material about two inches in width which cross over a dainty lingerie blouse and fasten on opposite sides half way down the front. The narrow sleeves are softened by their white cut, martial hat and a pair of white kid gloves and an English walking stick put the finishing touches to this costume.

Helen Holmes is mourning the death of her father, who for a number of years was traffic manager of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois railroad.

GINGLES' JINGLES

GOOD OLD SHIP.

Exams are past, we're free at last, no school work now we fear, no school bell to us shall tell, "my rings means beat it here." We're home for keeps, turn off the weeps, turn on the joy galore, we're happy some, let summer come, let any old thing sour. Should we care? Nix, we want no picks, for soon we'll be in trim, right there with zip, since our ship "Vacation" has come in—came loaded well with things just swell, for good old summer time, with tents and duds, and chops and spuds, and toys that walk and climb. It sure is great, each little pace is all elation now, we'll hop and skip for good old ship "Vacation" smoothed our brow; supplanting joy with maid and boy, in place of care and strife, releasing hands and knowledge pans, and flooding earth with Levin H. Gingles life.

"The Three Godfathers"

Life and death clasp hands in momentary passing—the mother dies in giving birth to her son. The father, lost in a sand storm, perishes; the babe is alone in the middle of the Mojave Desert. Come three bank robbers, escaping the sheriff's posse because the sandstorm has obliterated their trail. Fifty miles from civilization a new born babe in the keeping of three bandits; there is the situation that arises in the Bluebird Photoplay to be exhibited at the Beverly theatre tonight under the title of "The Three Godfathers." The story, by Peter B. Kyne, was originally printed in the Saturday Evening Post and Bluebird Photoplays snapped up the moving picture rights because Horace Lorimer, editor of the Post said it was the best story that monarch of weeklies had ever printed—and Bluebird presents one of the best available subjects for photoplaying.

DOINGS OF THE VAN LOONS—No. It Isn't as Quiet as Father Imagines—

BY F. LEIPZIGER

The Auction Block

By REX BEACH

Copyright by Harper & Brothers

"I've traveled some," observed Merkle, "but this city is getting to be the limit."

She nodded her amber head. "There's only one Paris, after all, and that's New York."

The mood grew noisier; the orchestra interspersed sardonic melodies from the popular successes with the tantalizing ragtime airs that had set the city to singing. Silent-footed attendants deposited tissue-covered packages before the guests. There was a flutter of excitement as the women began to examine their favors.

"What is it?" Merkle inquired, leaning toward Lorelei.

The new sashbag purses. See? It's very French. Gold findings—and a coin purse and card case inside. See the monogram? I have picked these out for Mr. Hammond, and they're exquisite. We share the same dressing room, you know."

Merkle regarded her with a sudden new interest.

"Then I dare say you're close friends?"

"We're close enough—in that room; but scarcely friends. What did you get?"

"A gold safety razor—evidently a warning not to play with edged tools. I wonder if Miss Lynn bought one for Jarvis?"

"No, why did you say that?" Lorelei asked, quickly, "and why did you ask in that peculiar tone if she and I were friends?"

The man leaned closer, saying in a voice that did not carry above the clamor:

"I suppose you know she's making a fool of him? I suppose you realize what it means when a woman of her stamp gets a man with money in her power? You must know all there is to know from the outside; it occurred to me that you might also know something about the inside of the affair. Do you?"

"I'm afraid not. All I've heard is the common gossip."

"There's a good deal here that doesn't show on the surface. That woman is a menace to a great many people, of whom I happen to be one."

"You speak as if she were a dangerous character, and as if she had deliberately entangled him," Lorelei said.

"It isn't devils, Rob's all right. He's running with a fast crowd, and he has to keep up his end."

"Bah! He hasn't been sober in a year."

"You're a dyspeptic, John. You were born with a gray beard, and you're not growing younger. He wanted to come to this party, but I didn't care to have him for obvious reasons, so I told Hammond to refuse him even if he asked. He bet me a thousand dollars he'd come anyhow, and I've been expecting him to overpower those doormen or creep up the fire escape."

band. He sent for her one evening, and when she went down there was Mr. Hammond, too. When she came upstairs she was hysterical. She cried and laughed and cursed—it was terrible.

"Curious," murmured the man, staring at the object of their controversy. "What did she say?"

"Oh, nothing connected. She called him every kind of a monster, accused him of every crime from murder to—"

"Murder!" The banker started. "He had made a long fight to beat her down, and she was unstrung. She seemed to have a queer physical aversion to him."

"Humph! She's got nobly over that."

"I've told you this because you seemed to think she's to blame, when it is all Mr. Hammond's doing."

"It's a peculiar situation—very. You're interested in it. In a way I don't blame him for seeking amusement and happiness where he can find it, and yet—I'm afraid of the result."

"The city is full of Samsons, and most of them have their Delilahs."

Merkle agreed. "These men put Hammond where he is. I wonder if they will let him stay there. It depends upon that girl yonder."

He turned to answer a question from Hannibal Wharton, and Lorelei gave her attention to the part of the entertainment which was beginning on the stage. Of a sudden the clamor was silenced, and indifference gave place to curiosity, for the music had begun the introduction of one of Adoree Demorest's songs. Lorelei had never seen this much-discussed actress, whose wickedness had set the town agog, and her first impression was vaguely disappointing. Miss Demorest's beauty was by no means remarkable. She was animated, audacious, vividly alive in a daring costume of solid black, against and through which her limbs flashed with startling effect as she performed her famous Danse de Nuit.

"Hm-m! Nothing very extreme about that," remarked Merkle, at length. "It would be beautiful if it were better done."

Lorelei agreed. She had been staring with all a woman's intensity at this sister whose strength consisted of her frailty, and now inquired:

"How does she get away with it?"

"By the power of suggestion, I dare say. Her public is looking for something devilish, and discovers whatever it chooses to imagine in what she says and does."

Hannibal Wharton had changed his seat, and, regardless of the dancer, began a conversation with Merkle. After a time Lorelei heard him say:

"It cost me five thousand dollars to pay for the damage those boys did. They threatened to jail Bob, but of course I didn't allow that."

"I remember. That was five years ago, and Bob hasn't changed a whit. I think he's a menace to society."

Wharton laughed, but his reply was lost in the clamorous demand for an encore by Miss Demorest.

"So he gets his devilment from you, eh?" Merkle inquired.

"It isn't devils, Rob's all right. He's running with a fast crowd, and he has to keep up his end."

"Bah! He hasn't been sober in a year."

your thousand. I withdraw what I said about him; it requires a gigantic intelligence to outwit you." To Lorelei he added: "This will be considered a great joke on Broadway."

"That is Mr. Wharton's son?"

"It is—and the most dissipated lump of arrogance in New York."

"Bob," the father shouted, "quit that foolishness and come down here!" But the junior Wharton, his eyes fixed upon the stage, merely danced the harder. A few moments later he sank into a chair near his father, saying: "Well, dad, what do you think of my educated legs? I learned that at night school."

Wharton grumbled unintelligibly, but it was plain that he was not entirely displeased at his son's prank.

"You were superb," said Merkle warmly. "It's the best thing I ever saw you do, Bob. You could almost make a living for yourself at it."

The young man grinned, showing rows of firm, strong teeth. Lorelei, who was watching him, decided that he must have at least twice the usual number; yet it was a good mouth—a good, big, generous mouth.

"Thanks for those glorious words of praise; that's more than we're doing on the Street nowadays. Whew! Got any grape-juice for a growing boy?" He helped himself to his father's wine glass and drained it.

"You can settle now, dad—one thousand iron men. I owe it to Demorest."

"What do you mean?"

"Debt of honor. I heard she was due here with some kind of an electric thrill, so I offered her my share of the sweetstakes to further disgrace herself by dancing with me." He caught Lorelei's eye and stared boldly. "Hello! I day, and the young ones turkey-trot all night. I stay up late in the hope that I may find a quarter that some suburbanite has dropped."

The elder man rose and sauntered away in the direction of their host, whereupon Bob winked.

"They've left us flat. Why? Because the wicked Miss Demorest has finally made her appearance as a guest. My dad is a splendid shock absorber. Naughty, naughty papa!"

"It's probably well that you came with her; fathers are so indiscreet."

Young Wharton signaled to a waiter who was passing with a wine bottle and a napkin.

"Tarry!" he cried. "Remove the shroud, please, and let me look at poor old Redder. Thanks. How natural he tastes." Then to Lorelei: "The governor is a woman hater; but no man is safe in range of your liquid orbs, Miss Knight. Wouldn't mother enjoy reading the list of Hammond's guests at this party? Among those present were Mr. Hannibal C. Wharton, the well-known rolling-mill man; Miss Lorelei Knight, principal first-act fairy of the Bergman Revue, and Miss Adoree Demorest, the friend of a king. A good time was had by all, and the diners enjoyed themselves very nice."

He laughed loudly, and the girl stirred.

"She'd be pleased to read also that you came late, but highly intoxicated."

"Ah! Salvation Nell." Bob took no offense. "If the hour was late she'd know my intoxication followed as a matter of course. I am a derivative of alcohol, the one and infallible argument against temperance, Miss Knight."

"You talk as if you were always drunk."

"Oh—not always. By day I am frequently sober, but at such times I am fit company for neither man nor beast; I am harsh and unsympathetic; I scheme and I connive. With nightfall, however, there comes a metamorphosis. Once I am stocked up with ales, wines, liquors and cigars, I become a living, palpitating influence for good, spreading happiness and prosperity in my wake."

"Do you consider yourself in such a condition now?" queried Lorelei, vaguely amused.

"I am, and, since it is long past the closing hour of one and the tango parlors are dark, suppose we blow this 'Who's Who in Pittsburgh' and taxi-cab out to a roadside where the bass fiddle is still inhabited and the second generation is trotting to the 'Robert E. Lee'?"

Lorelei shook her head with a smile. "I don't care to go."

"Strange!" Mr. Wharton helped himself to a goblet of wine, appearing to heap the liquor above the edge of the glass. "No, if I were sober I could understand how you might prefer these 'pappy' guys to me, for nobody likes me then, but I'm agreeably pickled. Merkle won't take you anywhere, for he's full of distilled water and has a directors' meeting at ten."

"Why Don't You Ask Miss Demorest?"

believe in fairness, too, dad. Introduce me to the Princess."

Merkle volunteered this service, and Rob promptly hitched his chair closer. Lorelei saw that he was very drunk, and marveled at his control during the recent exhibition.

"Tell me more about the 'Parti-color Petrol' and 'Dental Chewing Gum,' Miss Knight. Your face is a household word in every street car," he began.

She replied promptly, quoting haphazard from the various advertisements in which she figured. "It never shrinks; it holds its shape; it must be seen to be appreciated; is cool, refreshing, and prevents decay."

"How did you meet that French dancer?" Hannibal Wharton queried, sourly, of his son.

"I stormed the stage door and waylaid her in the wings. She thought I was you, dad. Wharton is a grand old name." He chuckled at his father's exclamation.

"Where did you learn those Argentine wiggles?"

"Hard times are to blame, dad. The old men on the exchange play golf all the time, and the young ones turkey-trot all night. I stay up late in the hope that I may find a quarter that some suburbanite has dropped."

The elder man rose and sauntered away in the direction of their host, whereupon Bob winked.

"An extreme case, his is," said Robbins. "He is so much in love that he has become a postman so he can get the girl's letters an hour or two earlier."

"John, dear, you're not going out tonight, are you?"

"Why—er—I kind of half promised the boys I'd drop around for a game of Kelly pool."

"Oh, John, I wish you wouldn't. It's dreadfully lonesome here when you're out."

"Why, lover, I had no idea you missed me as much as that."

"Of course I don't want to deprive you of your pleasures, but I do wish you'd stay at home more than you do."

"Very well, dear. If you feel that way about it I'll stay in tonight."

"John, you're just the best hubby in all the world. Would you mind taking care of baby while I run around to the moving picture show?"

"I was standing peacefully on the corner, not bothering anybody, when a big, husky cop came up and told me to move on."

"You were just fool enough to do it, I suppose. Don't you know that you had a perfect right to stand there as long as you pleased?"

"Oh, yes, I knew that, but I was afraid the cop didn't know it."

"Mr. Fusser," said the professor, "can you tell me the meaning of the title 'Sir'?"

"I don't know the exact meaning," replied the student, "but that's what a girl says when the wrong chap kisses her."

RATING BUREAU FOR LIABILITY WRITING COMPANIES FAVORED

Insurance Commission Clearly Indicates Character of Legislation Which He Believes Advisable.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE]
Madison, Wis., Aug. 7.—Insurance Commissioner M. J. Cleary today forecast the character of the legislation which he will ask of the next legislature with reference to the companies writing compensation insurance. He will request the creation of a state compensation board to consist of the chairman of the industrial commission, the commissioner of insurance and a third person who will give his undivided attention to the duties imposed upon this board.

"I further believe that all compensation writing insurers, whether stock or mutual organizations, should be compelled by law to become a member of a rating and inspection bureau located within the state," declared Commissioner Cleary. "All such rating and inspection bureaus should be required by law to procure a license from the state and should be subject to visitation and examination by the proper state authority."

"Any licensed bureau could be compelled to admit to membership under reasonable rules and regulations, any company licensed to write compensation insurance in the state. The law would require all rates to be filed with the compensation board, and such rates should not be effective until approved as to adequacy by that board. All classification should also be required to be filed and approved by the compensation board."

"If the statistical information upon which future rates are to be based is to become valuable, it is necessary that it be uniform in classification. Further than this, to continue the practice of permitting insurers to make classifications without supervision means that the harmful situation that has developed between the compensation writing companies in this state is to be continued under the plan proposed, the rating and approval rate for a given classification will make such rates. The official rate for that classification, unless the same is varied under the authority of law as hereinafter specified. Upon filing the inspection report and classification made by the bureau, and its approval by the compensation board, the classification becomes an official one for each individual risk. Under this system there can be no excuse for deviating from the rate or classification. Insurers should be given authority to deviate from inspection rates, such deviation to be uniform for all risks in the classification affected, and should also be subject to the approval of the compensation bureau."

"The condition in Wisconsin, as related to this class of insurance, is not what it should be. This department, as well as the industrial commission, is daily in receipt of complaints from the practice of compensation companies or their agents, and especially with regard to the classification of risks. Much time and expense was given to the hearing of complaints growing out of the condition during the past year. Since a day passes that we are not asked as to what guarantee the state gives employers that the company selling compensation insurance is and will be solvent in the event of the compensation act. The statement is frequently made that if the state compels employers to carry insurance and assumes the duty of licensing it, it ought to give some reasonable guarantee that the companies will be able to meet their obligations if the employer becomes liable on account of accidents.

"I submit that there is force in this argument. Under existing law, however, there is no authority vested in the department of insurance, nor is there in any other state department, under which the state can take action to the end that the solvency of compensation writing insurance companies may not be endangered by practices indulged in or rates charged."

"Straight-away Pull" Saves the Team

Here is a harrow that cannot bind in the disk boxes. The above shows a true position of the disk in the Janesville and Budlong harrow. As you note, the bearings set flat against the disk boxings—the wear on the spool is equalized—oil gets to all parts—bearings last longer—the team has less of a load to pull.

The illustration above is as accurate as we can make it, a reproduction of what takes place in the disk box on the ordinary harrow. Side strain and twisting grind down the end of the bearing. This means less life for the bearings—possibility for breakage and needless expense for you and hard work for the team.

JANESVILLE and Budlong Disk Harrow

Note how the disks are hung so that they enter the ground like plow points. They get a clean, away pull from the drawbar—the only resistance is the cutting of the soil.

That's why our bearings last longer. And it's even so that it reduces the pull on the team.

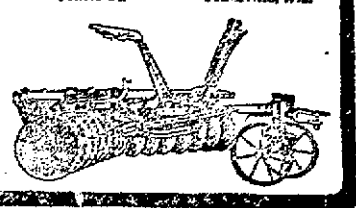

We give you your choice of steel or wood bearings. All of our bearings are interchangeable, and we will replace any of our old bearings proving defective within the life of the machine.

We can give you any size disk—concave, convex, or flat—or cut-out—cut or two levers—with or without tongue trucks and transporters.

The Flexible Movement of the Spade in Plowing

When you drive a spade into hard ground, you sort of "wiggle" it around between each push. It seems to go down easier—you remove the resistance of clinging soil.

It is this principle that we have succeeded in getting into Janesville Plows. Our object was to lessen the pull on your team by turning a plow into a spade. The S. & S. Anger twist moldboard slides through the soil with flexible movement. This flexibility is possible only in a single ball plow like the Janesville. The plow boxes have just enough movement in the frame to ease the shock at the point of the blade and its cutting edge. This takes the hard work out of plowing. The furrows shave off clean. The finished field shows a smooth job.

JANESVILLE FLOWS

With S. & S. Anger Twist Moldboards

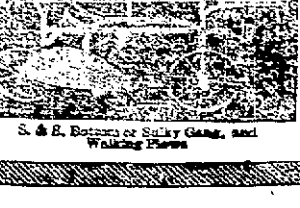

were used by the winners in the plowing contest at the Rock County Fair. Their winning furrows were smooth and straight. They left a clean and well-defined furrow. The plow cut the soil so deeply that the surface was smooth and clean. The finished field shows a smooth job.

SENATORS WIN BUT SOX RETAIN LEAD

Game Goes Ten Innings Before Washington Is Able to Down Sox.—Boston Series On.

Stano Collins misjudged a fly yesterday and Washington beat the Sox, 2 to 1, after ten innings of real baseball. A timely hit would have won for the Sox in any one of two or three occasions.

Although beaten the Sox still cling to first place in the league race, although only half a game ahead of Boston, who trimmed the St. Louis Browns. Today the Red Sox open at Chicago, and for the next four days the top rung will be at stake. If the Sox can break even in the series they will still hold the lead.

Walter Johnson subdued the Sox yesterday and allowed only six safe hits. Wolfgang was started by Rowland, but Red Faber was soon called to the rescue. The one run obtained by the Sox came in the sixth.

Jeff Tesreau.

Rumors out of New York recently avow that Jeff Tesreau the "Ozark Bear" has few more days as a Giant. It isn't likely that Jeff will go back to the bushes, but he seems to be of little further use to the Giants and McGraw is trying to pick out the proper place for him. There are lots of good games in him yet.

that he knocked out Welsh in the Denver fight fair and square and that there was nothing like a foul in it. However, that may be. Freddie still holds his title after the bout with Benny Leonard and it might be a fair idea to match him with Wolfgang again. It would be pretty sure to be an interesting fight, as the two all ways put up a good show and Ad would have something of a chance to cop. Ad gave the Englishman a pretty rough ride when they met about a year ago at Madison Square Garden, N. Y.

Freddie Welsh's showing against Benny Leonard reminds us that the champ isn't a joke just yet if he trains earnestly and that perhaps he still has a few good fights left in him. Freddie may deserve quite a bit of the knocking that has been directed toward him, but not all of it, and if he prepared as carefully for all his fights as he did for the one with Leonard it would be yet a while before any one copped his crown. As it is, Freddie is no fool and it isn't likely that he'll let anyone take his title from him in a ten-round no-decision bout.

There have been occasional rumors in New York that Art Shaffer, the star third sacker of a few seasons ago, is about to return to the Giants. These have usually appeared at a time when the Giants' infield was in need of help. But it's very unlikely that Shaffer will ever return to the team when he announced that he was going to retire for good and it was clear that he meant it. Shaffer was an unusual character in baseball, being one of the very few who only played for the fun of it. The youngster from California didn't have to stay. He knew he could quit whenever it tired him and that's what he did. In 1913 Shaffer beat Charlie Herzog out of his job at third and at a time when Buck was playing his best game. Shaffer may never play baseball again, but he will all ball players.

Matty seems to be getting results abroad with his Cincinnati Reds, though of course it is too early to do any very accurate judging. But he has mixed his infield around a bit with Groh at short and McKechnie at third, thus strengthening the inner garden. What's more, the young Eddie Roush is playing faster and better than ever in the outfield for the Reds and it's a safe bet that they will regret his loss. Most likely Eddie will do a lot for Cincinnati and for Matty.

About as neat a bit of pitching as has been done for a while was young Davenport's two victories over the New York Yankees a few days ago when he pitched both games of a double-header for the Browns and gave the opposition only one hit all told. Pitching both games of a double-header is stupendous in these days when there's hardly a pitcher that goes all the way through one game unassisted, and winning both games is a great deal more so. Winning them in such glibbed fashion with so few hits makes the whole performance a thing of wonder.

The New York Yankees are making money this season and have played to greater attendance so far this year than they did all last season. By the close of the present season, if they continue their good work, they'll clean up a pretty penny.

Artie Shaffer was in New York recently. The rumor that the old third base star might return to the Giants was thoroughly spiked when Shaffer went out to the grounds, put on a uniform with the players and the next day he left town, motoring back to his home in California. Art said he was through with the game and had no idea of returning. He doesn't like the daily grind, he says, and as he has independent means he can do as he pleases. There are few others like Artie.

As a means of disposing of your real estate, the little want ads are sure winners.

STATE HEALTH BODY HAS NEW BULLETIN ON BABY PARALYSIS

Latest Publication of Board Treats Infants in Wisconsin.—May Be Had on Request.

(SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.)

Madison, Wis., Aug. 7.—Infantile paralysis, its Wisconsin history, prevalence in this and other lands, causes, tendencies, symptoms and lines of prevention and treatment form the subject of a new bulletin just issued by the Wisconsin state board of health. Copies will be sent to citizens of the state upon application.

Three serious outbreaks have occurred in the summer of 1916 at Eau Claire and in the surrounding country whence it spread to the entire northwestern part of the state. The mortality rate in that epidemic, based upon the number of reported cases, was 15.3 per cent.

A second group of cases occurred near Richland Center, principally in the outlying districts surrounding the city. While much smaller in number of reported cases, this outbreak showed a slightly higher death rate than the Eau Claire epidemic. The last outbreak in this state showed more than twenty reported cases occurred in Grant county in the summer and fall of 1912, when the mortality was 14.3 per cent. Sporadic or isolated cases have been reported in various parts of the state since.

According to the bulletin, the greatest difficulty has been experienced by health authorities in obtaining a complete report in all cases, owing to the large number of mild and unrecognized cases (so called "abortive" cases) that never receive the attention of a physician. This lack of a complete report of all cases when the disease first appeared in the state accounts for a higher mortality rate than would otherwise exist. If a complete record of all cases were possible, the actual mortality rate would undoubtedly be much lower. At the present time practically every case is promptly reported.

Discussing prevention, the state board has the following to say: "All cases of infantile paralysis should be immediately reported to the local health authorities. As soon as a case is reported to the board of health, the school board should be informed, as such cases frequently occur in children too young to go to school. The school authorities may then send home the other children in the family, and if there is an epidemic perhaps the other children of that tenement."

"The premises should be quarantined at once, and the patient placed in a clean, bare room, well screened against insects, and only the necessary attendant and the physician allowed to come in contact with the patient. The utmost cleanliness of the patient and the sick room as well as of the attendants should be maintained throughout the disease. This is extremely important.

"All discharges, including sputum, nasal secretions, urine and feces

THE NEW WAY TO SPELL ECONOMY—C-H-A-L-M-E-R-S

A cheap piece of machinery, like the boy with a little knowledge, is sometimes a dangerous thing.

Men are buying better and better lawn mowers, and reapers, and printing presses, and gasoline engines and pumps.

Why? Because they find it pays.

Probably there's no better example of this in the case of automobiles than Chalmers cars.

Figures show that over 75% of men who have bought Chalmers cars this year previously owned a $500, $600 or $800 car.

And the great big increase in Chalmers sales (792% in six months) has come from towns just like this.

In the old days Chalmers cars were sold for the most part in towns like New York and Chicago.

You can find Chalmers cars most any time of the day in most any block in such towns even now.

But in the smaller communities Chalmers cars are most numerous today. Because the people in towns like this were quickest to see the value, note the endurance, and observe the wonderful performance.

Particularly of this 3400 r. p. m. Chalmers, which is, in our opinion, the most able car that ever came to this town.

Price $1090 Detroit, a car well worth $1400.

HOME IDEA A COMPLEX ONE

Writer in Harper's Describes It as He Insists That a Feminist Sees It.

The home idea is complex; it embraces privacy, possession; it implies a place where one can retreat, be master, be powerful in a small sphere, take off one's boots, be sulky or pleasant, as one likes. W. L. George writes in Harper's Magazine. It involves, above all, a place where one does not hear the neighbor's piano, or the neighbor's baby, or, with luck, the neighbor's cat; but where, on the other hand, one's own piano, one's own baby and one's own cat are raised to a high and personal pitch of importance.

It involves everything that is individual—one's own stationery block, one's monogram upon the plate. If the S. P. C. A. did not intervene, I think one might often see in the front garden a cat brandied with a hot iron; "Thomas Jones. His cat." It is the rallying point of domestic virtue, the origin of domestic tyranny. It is the place where public opinion cannot see you and where, therefore, you may behave badly. Most wife-beaters live in houses; in flats they would be afraid of the opinion of the hall porter.

The home spirit has hated theaters, concerts, dances, lectures, every form of amusement; and, as it has to bear them, likes to refer to them as debauches, or going on the razzle-dazzle, or the ran-dan, according to period.

It has powerfully allied itself with the pulpit and, in impious circles, with fancy work and crochet; it has enlisted a considerable portion of the Royal academy to depict it in various scenes for which the recipe is: One tired man with a sunny smile returning to his home; one delighted wife; suitable number of ebullient children and, inevitably, a dog. The dog varies. In England they generally put in a terrier, in war time a bulldog; in Germany it may be a dachshund, and in other countries it is another kind of dog, but it is always the same idea.

WHISPERED STORY OF RUTH

And Each Little Jewish Girl Was Rewarded With Feast Cake for Her Effort.

In the East side of New York as in the East end of London, the Jewish quarter of Paris or Judengasse of Berlin, thousands of Jewish mothers and grandmothers gathered the little daughters of the family to them one night recently. Into day ears was whispered the story of Ruth, the faithful. In each kitchen stood a new broom, and tallow candles burned brightly on tables spread with meats, wines and cakes.

"Little daughter," each mother whispered, "do you know what Ruth said to Naomi?"

"Yes," each little girl replied eagerly. She had rehearsed the great epic for weeks. "Ruth said 'Entreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee. For whither thou goest, I will go; and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people, and thy God my God.'"

And, bending her pride, each mother then said:

"Good! Here is a cake for you!"

Thus the feast of Shabbath was ushered in. The broom was just as much a part of the ceremony as the reward of a cake. With it one could sweep out the spirits and demons, the scheldim and maslikim, which ghetto traditions of the medieval ages lust after present during Omer, the time between Passover and Shabbath.—New York Tribune.

Nominating Cardinals.

The ceremony of nominating cardinals, which takes place at Rome, is not without its picturesque side. The consistory of the sacred college meets in secret—though particulars of the proceedings are afterwards given to the press—and, following upon a brief address, the pope names the persons he wishes to elevate to the purple. His nomination is final, but in accordance with the old custom when the cardinals voted for the election of their comrades, he asks, "What is your desire?" The cardinals then silently lay down their red silk caps, rise, and bow. It is the formal assent, and the new cardinals are declared elected.

England has cardinals other than those created by the pope. At one time there were officials of that title attached to a number of her cathedrals, whose duty it was to visit the sick and relieve the needy, but St. Paul's is now alone in the possession of a senior and a junior cardinal, elected by the deans from among the minor canons. One of the holders of the title in recent times was the author of the "Jackdaw of Rheims."

Confidence.

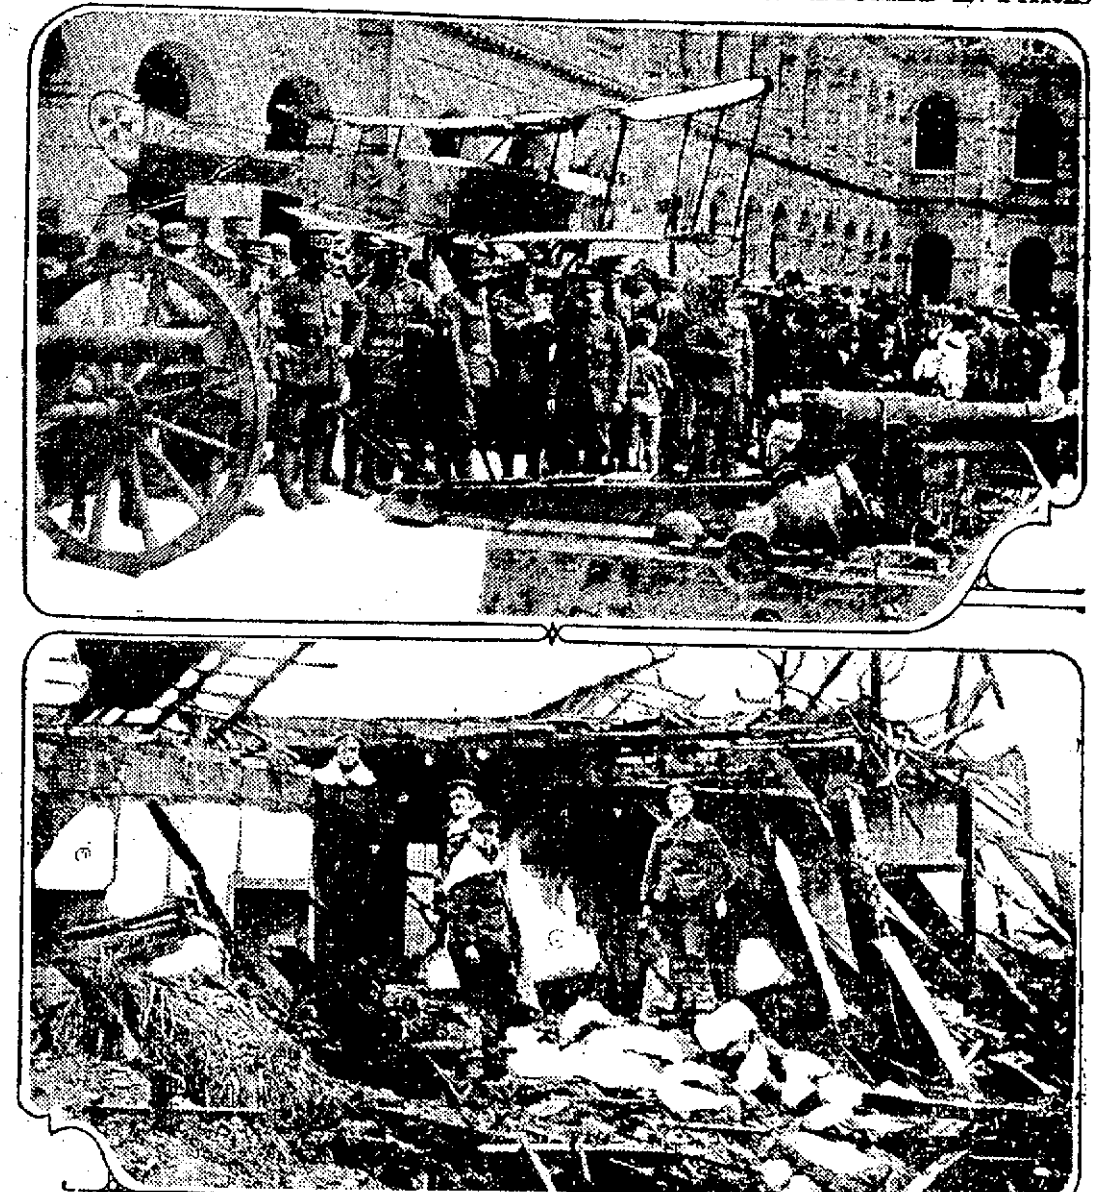

Why does this country tend always to belittle its wealth, its works, its men and its power to meet calamity? It does, and yet we are thought to be a people unembarrassed by modesty. Yankee boastfulness is a proverb in the world, but no Yankee ever told quite all the truth. He never dared, and, besides, he could not make himself believe the whole length and breadth of it. Distrusting their own judgment, the American people lack confidence in their great estate. The temperament is rich in daring, faith and optimism, but poor in confidence, which is a quality that comes with time. A young people perhaps should not have it. It is not good to have everything.—New York Times.

Too Late.

Sometimes it seems to us that if there had been automobile horns and things 50 years ago, the author of "Kind Words Can Never Die" would have been inspired to write something catty.—Houston Post.

BRITISH TROOPS WHO DROVE GERMANS BACK WELCOMED IN PARIS

Above: British troops in Paris with captured German guns and aero. Below: British troops among ruins of towns they captured in northern France during great drive.

These are among the first photos of the great British drive in northern France to be received in this country. In their huge offensive the Britons were obliged to utterly destroy French villages occupied by German troops. One of the English regiments which received the brunt of the fighting during the early part of the drive was called to the rear, and as the troops filed into the city of Paris they were given a great ovation by the French people.

Aigrettes From India.

Aigrette plumes are now obtained in India in much the same manner in which we get our ostrich plumes. When captured, the birds become very tame. They are fed upon fish. The birds grow rapidly, and each year produce four sets of the delicate, highly prized aigrettes. The aigrette is removed without the least injury to the bird. India seems to be the only country in which aigrettes can be obtained without killing the mother bird for her plumes.

CINDER IN THE EYE

Sometimes it is said of a man that his perspective on a proposition is all wrong. This is very true of a man with a cinder in his eye. He is too close. His perspective is all distorted. He thinks it is important.

Think of the dirt that was taken out of the Panama Canal!

When you get a cinder in your eye, think of a wagon load of coal. Try a lot of little tricks on yourself and attempt to get the normal, general attitude on coal, cinders, dirt and debris. Do not allow yourself to exaggerate the importance and significance of a cinder just because it is yours. True, possession is nine points of the law, but that is no excuse for conceit about your cinder.

Before you become the owner of a cinder, you probably passed wagon loads of them on the street and never looked up and said, "There goes a wagon load of cinders," and, with that, dismissed the subject entirely from your mind—quite a much more normal point of view. Cinders are all right in quantities, and in certain green uses, such as filling a hole in a street, but they are no rare jewel to be raved about just because you happen to be wearing one in your own eye. Yes, most people are entirely too emotional about their cinders, almost sentimental in fact.

There is a meanness about a cinder that makes it commonplace. Think of the solar system, if one had that in his eye, he might go about with pride. A cinder is so small! have and harbor one if you will, but in secrecy, in quietness, in modesty. Don't bore your friends about it, much as it may become a hobby with you.

FORTY YEARS AGO

Janesville Daily Gazette, Monday, Aug. 7, 1876.—Remember the Centennial picnic tomorrow and bring your dinner.

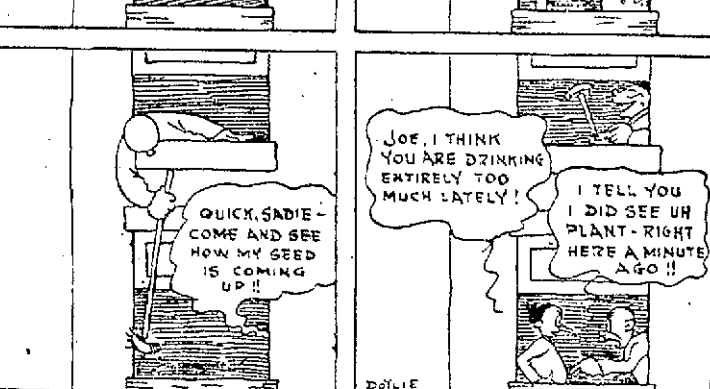

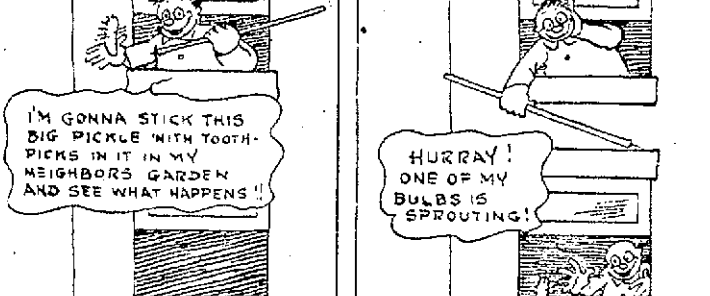

W. M. Eldredge's contribution to the Centennial year is a daughter of ten pounds in weight. All is well. The attendance at the caucuses on Saturday was very moderate; still there was much interest taken in the affair as there usually is on such occasion.

The inhabitants of the second ward were thrown into a state of excitement early Sunday morning. A man had hung himself on a picket fence, and when he was found, he was dead—frank!

This is how a young American of thirteen or fourteen summers came it on his father yesterday in the first ward. Said the son to the father, "There is a jackass on one side of the river, and a stack of hay on the other now how can the ass get to the hay without getting wet?" "Why, across on the ferry," answered the parent. "No," replied the son, "there is no ferry." "Then on a bridge." "No, there is no bridge." "On the ice?" "There is no ice, no bridge, no ferry." "Then I give it up," said the father. "That's just what the other jackass did," quickly retorted the son.

For some years he has devoted his attention to politics, and is now a member of the House of Commons and Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Education before entering on his present duties as Parliamentary Secretary to the Ministry of Munitions. Every detail of the munition industry is known to Dr. Addison, and during an interview with a representative of the Associated Press he told as much of the story of the creation of this im-
